County To Invest $83,284 Revenue; City Gets $122,785

Navarro County Commissioners this morning voted unanimously to invest its $83,284 federal revenue sharing check on a 30-day certificate of deposit until the commissioners' court decides what to do with the money.

County Auditor Johnny George presented the check to County Judge Kenneth Douglas during the commission meeting this morning, saying it had just arrived in the mail.

Douglas noted that Navarro County was originally supposed to receive about $114,000 under the revenue sharing program and commented, "It goes to show that he that giveth also can taketh away."

The commissioners established a Navarro County Revenue Sharing Trust Fund from which the money will be used for projects to be decided later.

The City of Corsicana received its revenue check also Monday in the amount of $122,785. City officials had said previously first planned use of these monies will be in the area of street maintenance and improvements.

Post Office Here To Be Open Saturday Morning

Postmaster W.C. Galloway announced Thursday service windows will be open for all services this Saturday until noon. On Saturday, Dec. 23, windows will not be open.

Postmaster Galloway urged immediate mailing of all domestic Christmas cards and parcels.

"Although most of the suggested mailing dates for domestic holiday mail have past," he said, "every effort will be made to deliver by Christmas Eve all cards, gifts and other holiday mail deposited within the next few days."

"In view of these reports and the excellent cooperation received from early mailers so far this year, we are confident that holiday mail deposited immediately will still be delivered in time for Christmas," Mr. Galloway said.

Earlier this year, the Postal Service urged the public to mail as early as possible and announced a series of recommended mailing dates to insure delivery in time for Christmas.

The last suggested mailing date is Thursday, December 21, for mailing domestic airmail greeting cards within the 48 "mainland" states. The latest suggested date for airmail to Alaska and Hawaii is December 20.

"In extending our commitment to make every possible effort to deliver all holiday mail on time—even though most suggested deadlines are past—we hope the general public will respond accordingly," Mr. Galloway said.

Flap Fails To Remove Atom Symbol from Tree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Something of a flap over the ornament which crowns the national Christmas tree near the White House has fallen short of its goal of replacing the atomic symbol of peace with a more traditional star.

When Vice President Spiro T. Agnew presses a button to light the tree at dusk Friday, the ornament will be there—a spherical decoration made up of four circles lighted with 120 bulbs and, in its center, a brighter bulb of 500 watts.

John T. Suter, an architect and designer for the General Electric Co. who designed the lighting for the 70-foot tree, has said the outer rings symbolize the many peoples of the world and the inner light stands for the large glow of hope for peace.

Arthur J. Lamb, director of special events for the Park Service, told a reporter his office talked to an estimated 35 to 40 callers, most of whom dropped their objections when told there has not been a traditional star on top of the tree since 1964.

The crowning ornaments, he said, have included representations of ice cream cones, teardrops, snowflakes and pointed objects with flowers. He said there is no plan to change the atomic symbol, which resembles the path of electrons around a nucleus.

Area Officials Attending Fairfield Trinity Hearing

BY JIM BUSH
Daily Sun Staff Writer

FAIRFIELD — In spite of a cold front and downpouring of rain, a large group crowded into the Fairfield High School auditorium this morning to present and hear environmental statements on the proposed Trinity River multipurpose project.

The Fairfield meeting, third in a series called by the Army Corps of Engineers for the purpose of hearing a wide range of opinions on the Trinity project, began shortly after 10 a.m. with an introduction of guests by Lt. Col. Hewitt, Ft. Worth district deputy engineer.

Present at the meeting were representatives from most area towns including Navarro County Commissioners Arlon Simmons, Ellis Montgomery and Homer McNabb. From other area towns were Teague Mayor Earle Long, Keren's Mayor Stoner Baker, Leon County Judge W. A. Plunket, Henderson County Judge Winston Reagan, and Kaufman County Commissioner Howell Couch.

Also present were the mayors of Kaufman, Huntsville and Centerville and a number of other representatives.

The Line Keeps Moving

Busiest time of the year at Collin Street Bakery is right now when millions of pounds of DeLuxe Fruitcake are being turned out to fill Holiday orders. Edward Nolan, front, and Frank Ellison run a steady race with the conveyor belt, scooping up the creamy batter with gloved hands and putting in just the right amount, whether it's a two, three or five-pound pan en route to the giant ovens. ## More World-famous Collin Street Cakes To Brighten Holidays than Ever Before Collin Street Bakery today people placing their own orders exceeded in poundage the total after receiving fruitcakes as holiday baking season of its gifts. DeLuxe fruitcakes for last year as the bakery is having its 27th consecutive year of growth.

"Last year our production was just under 2.5 million pounds, and this year will exceed 2.6 million," Vice-President Norman (Buddy) Shaw said Wednesday.

Fruitcake production for his holiday season began Oct. 3 and has been steadily building up to fill orders from all 50 states and every country in the world.

Beginning today, the bakery will schedule production on a day-to-day basis to fill orders which are expected to taper off around Dec. 16 for Christmas deliveries. That doesn't mean the bakery won't be turning out fruitcakes—they are made year round, baking once or twice a week to fill orders.

Oddly enough, January is the bakery's third best month of production. This is attributed to millions of cakes to eight post offices for re-distribution from Los Angeles, Oakland, Denver, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago, Atlanta and New York.

Corsicana's post office is not large enough to handle the huge volume, but the post office still gets credit and has a local cancellation on fruitcakes dispatched through the Corsicana post office. The cakes are taken by truck to the Fort Worth mail terminal and distributed from there with a Corsicana postmark.

Shaw couldn't estimate what the postage bill amounts to but acknowledged it is one of the bakery's largest expenses in getting the product delivered to the customer or gift recipient of cakes.

Like "ole man river," Collin Street Bakery's fruitcake just keeps going on and on, growing in numbers and pounds year after year.

TRINITY TALKS CONTINUE:

Downstreamers Want Ecology, Upstreamers Want Flood Control, Development

LIBERTY, Tex. (AP) — Under attack in the courts, the U.S. Corps of Engineers held the second of three scheduled hearings here Wednesday on its ambitious plan to build a barge canal up the Trinity River to Dallas and Fort Worth.

Today the final hearing unwinds at Fairfield in the middle portion of the Trinity following Wednesday's testimony near the river's mouth and Tuesday's at Arlington where the Trinity forms.

Wednesday's hearing seemed to split between the people who live upstream on the Trinity and who welcome flood control, canalization and the industry it will bring and those who live downstream and fear more pollution from industrialization.

Representatives from pollution-conscious Houston and Galveston turned out to condemn the Corps' plans for the Trinity, leaving J. C. Smith of Liberty, who favors the plan, to suggest

"these erudite gentlemen from Houston and Galveston" should go back where they came from.

Speakers from such groups as the Sierra Club, the National Audubon Society, Save Our Shores of Galveston and the Citizens Environmental Coalition of Houston all said they were afraid of increased pollution from industry and oil spills on a revamped Trinity.

They also said restriction of the flow of water and nutrients because of dams and canal locks would kill the multi-million dollar commercial fishing industry in the Gulf by ruining breeding grounds in Trinity and Galveston Bays.

Guy K. Jackson of Anahuac, a member of the board of directors of the Trinity River Authority which strongly backs canalization, angrily replied that the Corps should consider the cost of "buying all the flood-prone land around the Trinity River bottom." Jackson said flood after flood has hit his area and people there need help "even if we will kill a small amount, and I mean a very small amount of shrimp."

The Corps of Engineers is holding the series of hearings before drawing up a general statement about the possible impact of the project on the environment.

The hearings came after environmentalists filed a lawsuit in federal court in Houston in September of 1971 over the building of the Wallisville dam, authorized under different legislation than the proposed canalization, does contain one of the 20 locks that would be needed to lift barges uphill on a voyage to Dallas.

Although over 16 months old, the environmentalist's request for a temporary injunction to stop the building of the Wallisville dam pending a full lawsuit has not been heard and the dam is now over 75 per cent complete.

At Wednesday's hearing U.S. Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., who frequently can be found in the ranks of the environmentalists, told members of the Corps he doubts that they really listen when the people talk.

The Houston Democrat said he has not made up his mind about the Trinity project, and is also not sure that environmental public hearings are needed.

"I have begun to wonder if public hearings such as this one are every really considered," Eckhardt said. "Or is it just a matter of going through a process."

Eckhardt, who said he believes canalization of the Trinity will seriously harm commercial fishing in the Gulf, said most of the environmentalism espoused by the Corps tends to evaporate when they start moving dirt.

"I have found a great deal more emphasis on the environment in planning stages than I have found in Developmental stages," he said.

One who urged the Corps to get cracking on the project was Warren G. Clark Jr. of Anahuac, a board member of the Chambers County navigation district.

"We are at the crossroads of development on the Trinity," Clark said. "If the Trinity is left in its natural state it would be a disastrous decision. I do not believe we can turn back."

There was one Houston voice heard in favor of the canal. A

S. Lehmann, chairman of the water supply and conservation committee of the Houston Chamber of Commerce said with the Houston-Galveston area forecast to have 10 million people in 50 years, the area will need all the water it can get, including that stored in the proposed dams on the Trinity.

But Lehmann also warned that for the water to do any good a regional plan for water quality management must be established with the river monitored constantly for possible polluters.

Another witness, A. C. Shirley, of the Texas State Council of Carpenters said his 2500 man organization favors canalization of the Trinity because "... we are interested in the economic benefits of this project."

Schools Expel Four, Hold Secret 'Personnel' Talks

BY ROB MECKEL
Sun Staff Writer

Trustees for the Corsicana Independent School District, during a short meeting Tuesday night, expelled four Corsicana High School girls who were arrested several weeks ago on suspicion of possession of marijuana near the school campus.

The trustees met for only about one-half hour before going into a secret meeting called by Chairman Maco Stewart who said it was called to discuss "personnel matters."

Seale said this morning that discussion at the closed-door session resulted in "no change" on the status of the upcoming decision which the board must make on whether or not to renew his (Seale's) contract as superintendent. The contract expires in January. Seale said he will remain as superintendent until a new superintendent is named.

According to Seale, there were some personnel matters discussed during the secret meeting, but most of the discussion was about adjustments in Jim Collins Scholarships regarding students now receiving them and students who will receive them in future years.

(Editor's note: The 1967 Open Meetings Law, designed to possibly during his eighth grade prohibit governmental bodies from closing meetings to the had not noticed that the boy was placed in the wrong school zone at the beginning of this school year, and this error was later discovered. He said the boy's parents wanted the child to remain with his friends.

During discussion on this item, board member Fred Kessinger commented that many other people with similar requests have already been "turned down" by the board, and another trustee, Dr. James Price, said "We have no choice." The vote denying the request was unanimous.

In other business, the board accepted the resignation of Mrs. Barbara Moe, a Spanish instructor at Corsicana High School who, according to Seale, resigned "for the purpose of entering law school." The effective date of resignation is Jan. 12, 1973.

The board also voted in favor of hiring Patricia Ann Moseley as a language arts teacher at Corsicana High School. Miss Moseley received her B.S. degree from Texas A&I University and a master of arts degree from the University of Texas at Austin, and has a number of years of prior teaching experience. Her effective date of employment is Jan. 15, 1973.

The board also voted to deny a request by Mrs. Thomas E. Smith to allow her seventh grade son, Tommy, to remain at Collins Middle School next semester and possibly during his eighth grade year.

Seale reported the delinquent tax due for November was $3,122.50.

The board voted also to deny a request by Mrs. Thomas E. Smith to allow her seventh grade son, Tommy, to remain at Collins Middle School next semester and possibly during his eighth grade year.

Seale said school officials from closing meetings to the had not noticed that the boy was expelled of each girl separately rather than as a group; the vote in favor of expulsion was unanimous in all four cases. Stewart told the board members the board must later consider whether or not to readmit the girls to school during the spring semester.

Seale reported the delinquent tax due for November was $3,122.50.

The board also approved the payment of $21,622.37 in operating fund expenditures. These bills include $6,316.65 to Lone Star Gas Company for natural gas service, and $1,046.54 to the City of Corsicana for water and other services. Other bills include $948.78 to Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, and two bills of $15.38 and $714.97 for gasoline from Mobil Oil Corporation.

Other bills approved for payment included a total of $20,877.05 listed under the Interest and Sinking Fund. This total included $20,727.94 in 1957 series bonds at State National Bank of Corsicana, and $149.11 in bonds from Blooming Grove Independent School District.

Athletic Association Fund bills totaled $2,499.70, and Jim Collins Trust Fund bills, $2,935.48.

Another business item was a report from Seale to change the school calendar so that students can make up for school days missed this semester. The changes were approved unanimously on motion by Kessinger.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof"—It speaks of His greatness, it sings of His love, And each day at dawning I lift my heart high And raise up my eyes to the infinite sky... I watch the night vanish as a new day is born, And I hear the birds sing on the wings of the morn, I see the dew glisten in crystal-like splendor While God, with a touch that is gentle and tender, Wraps up the night and softly tucks it away And hangs out the sun to herald a new day, A day yet unblown by what's gone before, A chance to begin and start over once more, And all I need do is to silently pray— God, help me and guide me and go with me today.

Status Report on Schooler Case Gets Study by Hospital Board

A status report about a federal court order to conduct a "full, open hearing" to determine whether or not Dr. Joe F. Schooler of Dawson will be allowed to practice medicine in the Navarro County Memorial Hospital was discussed Wednesday night by the hospital's board of directors.

The board did not vote to set a hearing date, but the court order, entered Nov. 15 by U.S. Dist. Judge Sarah T. Hughes, requires the board to conduct the hearing on or prior to Feb. 1, 1973. The hospital's board's next scheduled meeting is Jan. 18, 1973.

The hospital's attorney, Glenn Stewart, told the board that another lawyer in Dallas, who is also working on the case for the hospital, is presently "lining up" depositions from doctors and administrators where Dr. Schooler worked previously." He said the court order requires the hospital to allow Schooler reasonable time prior to the hearing to view copies of Harwell said people pay a bank evidence against him which is more readily than they would a presented in the form of letters, hospital, and it is hoped that this depositions and similar material. system will improve the cash The order requires that flow at the hospital.

77.92 per cent. The actual cost per patient day was $73.74 while the budgeted amount for November was $71.61. The actual gross income per patient day was $66.64 projected at $69.51 per patient day for this period.

During November, a total of 589 patients, including newborns, were admitted to the hospital, and 549 were dismissed. There were 47 newborns dismissed.

176 Medicare dismissions and 41 pay patients were dismissed. A total of 231 patients had insurance other than Blue Cross (excluding newborns), and 68 patients (excluding newborns) had Blue Cross coverage.

The hospital handled 1,717 outpatients with the average number per day at 132.97 and the average length of stay (excluding newborns) 7.60 days.

There were 15 deaths during November, and one autopsy was performed.

There were 120 major surgeries and 139 minor surgeries. There were also 48 obstetric deliveries and 13 caesarean sections.

JFK's Barks from the Tub,
Note to Burned Tot's Mom:
Images Jump from Book

NEW YORK (AP) — John Kennedy barking vocal exercises in the bathtub, seeking companionship on lonely evenings in the White House, pausing to write a note of encouragement to the mother of a badly burned child on the day his infant son died — these are the images of the late president in a new book written by two close friends.

David F. Powers and Kenneth P. O'Donnell, beer-drinking political buddies of long standing and White House confidants of John F. Kennedy, spent eight months after his assassination recording on tape their memories of Kennedy.

Those tapes are now a book, "Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye," an affectionate, personal remembrance produced with the help of writer Joe McCarthy.

O'Donnell reports one conversation, occasioned by the doubts he voiced concerning Kennedy's choice of Lyndon B. Johnson as his running mate in 1960.

"He said something to me that I am always going to remember: 'Get one thing clear, Kenny, I'm 43 years old, and I'm the healthiest candidate for president in the country, and I'm not going to die in office."

During the 1960 presidential campaign, the authors report, Kennedy did vocal exercises to preserve his voice. One of those exercises called for him to bark like a dog for 30 minutes every morning. Kennedy took to doing this in the bathtub.

"The first time that we heard the strange animal sounds coming from the bathroom, Dave (Powers) opened the door to see what was happening. Kennedy looked at him from the tub, embarrassed. 'I heard a funny noise,' Dave said, 'and I thought there was a seal in the tub.' For the next few weeks we had to make up excuses when an early morning visitor at our hotel room asked what was going on in the bathroom."

What the authors add to the already considerable Kennedy literature is a personal view only close pals could have. He cursed occasionally, liked sports, was entranced by celebrities, and remembered others even at moments of personal travail.

When Patrick Bouvier Kennedy was born prematurely in August 1963, Kennedy stayed at the Boston hospital where the baby was taken.

Awakened early one morning because the baby's condition was worse, Kennedy, while waiting for an elevator, saw a child who had been severely burned. He asked the mother's name, Powers said, then wrote a note of sympathy and encouragement to her.

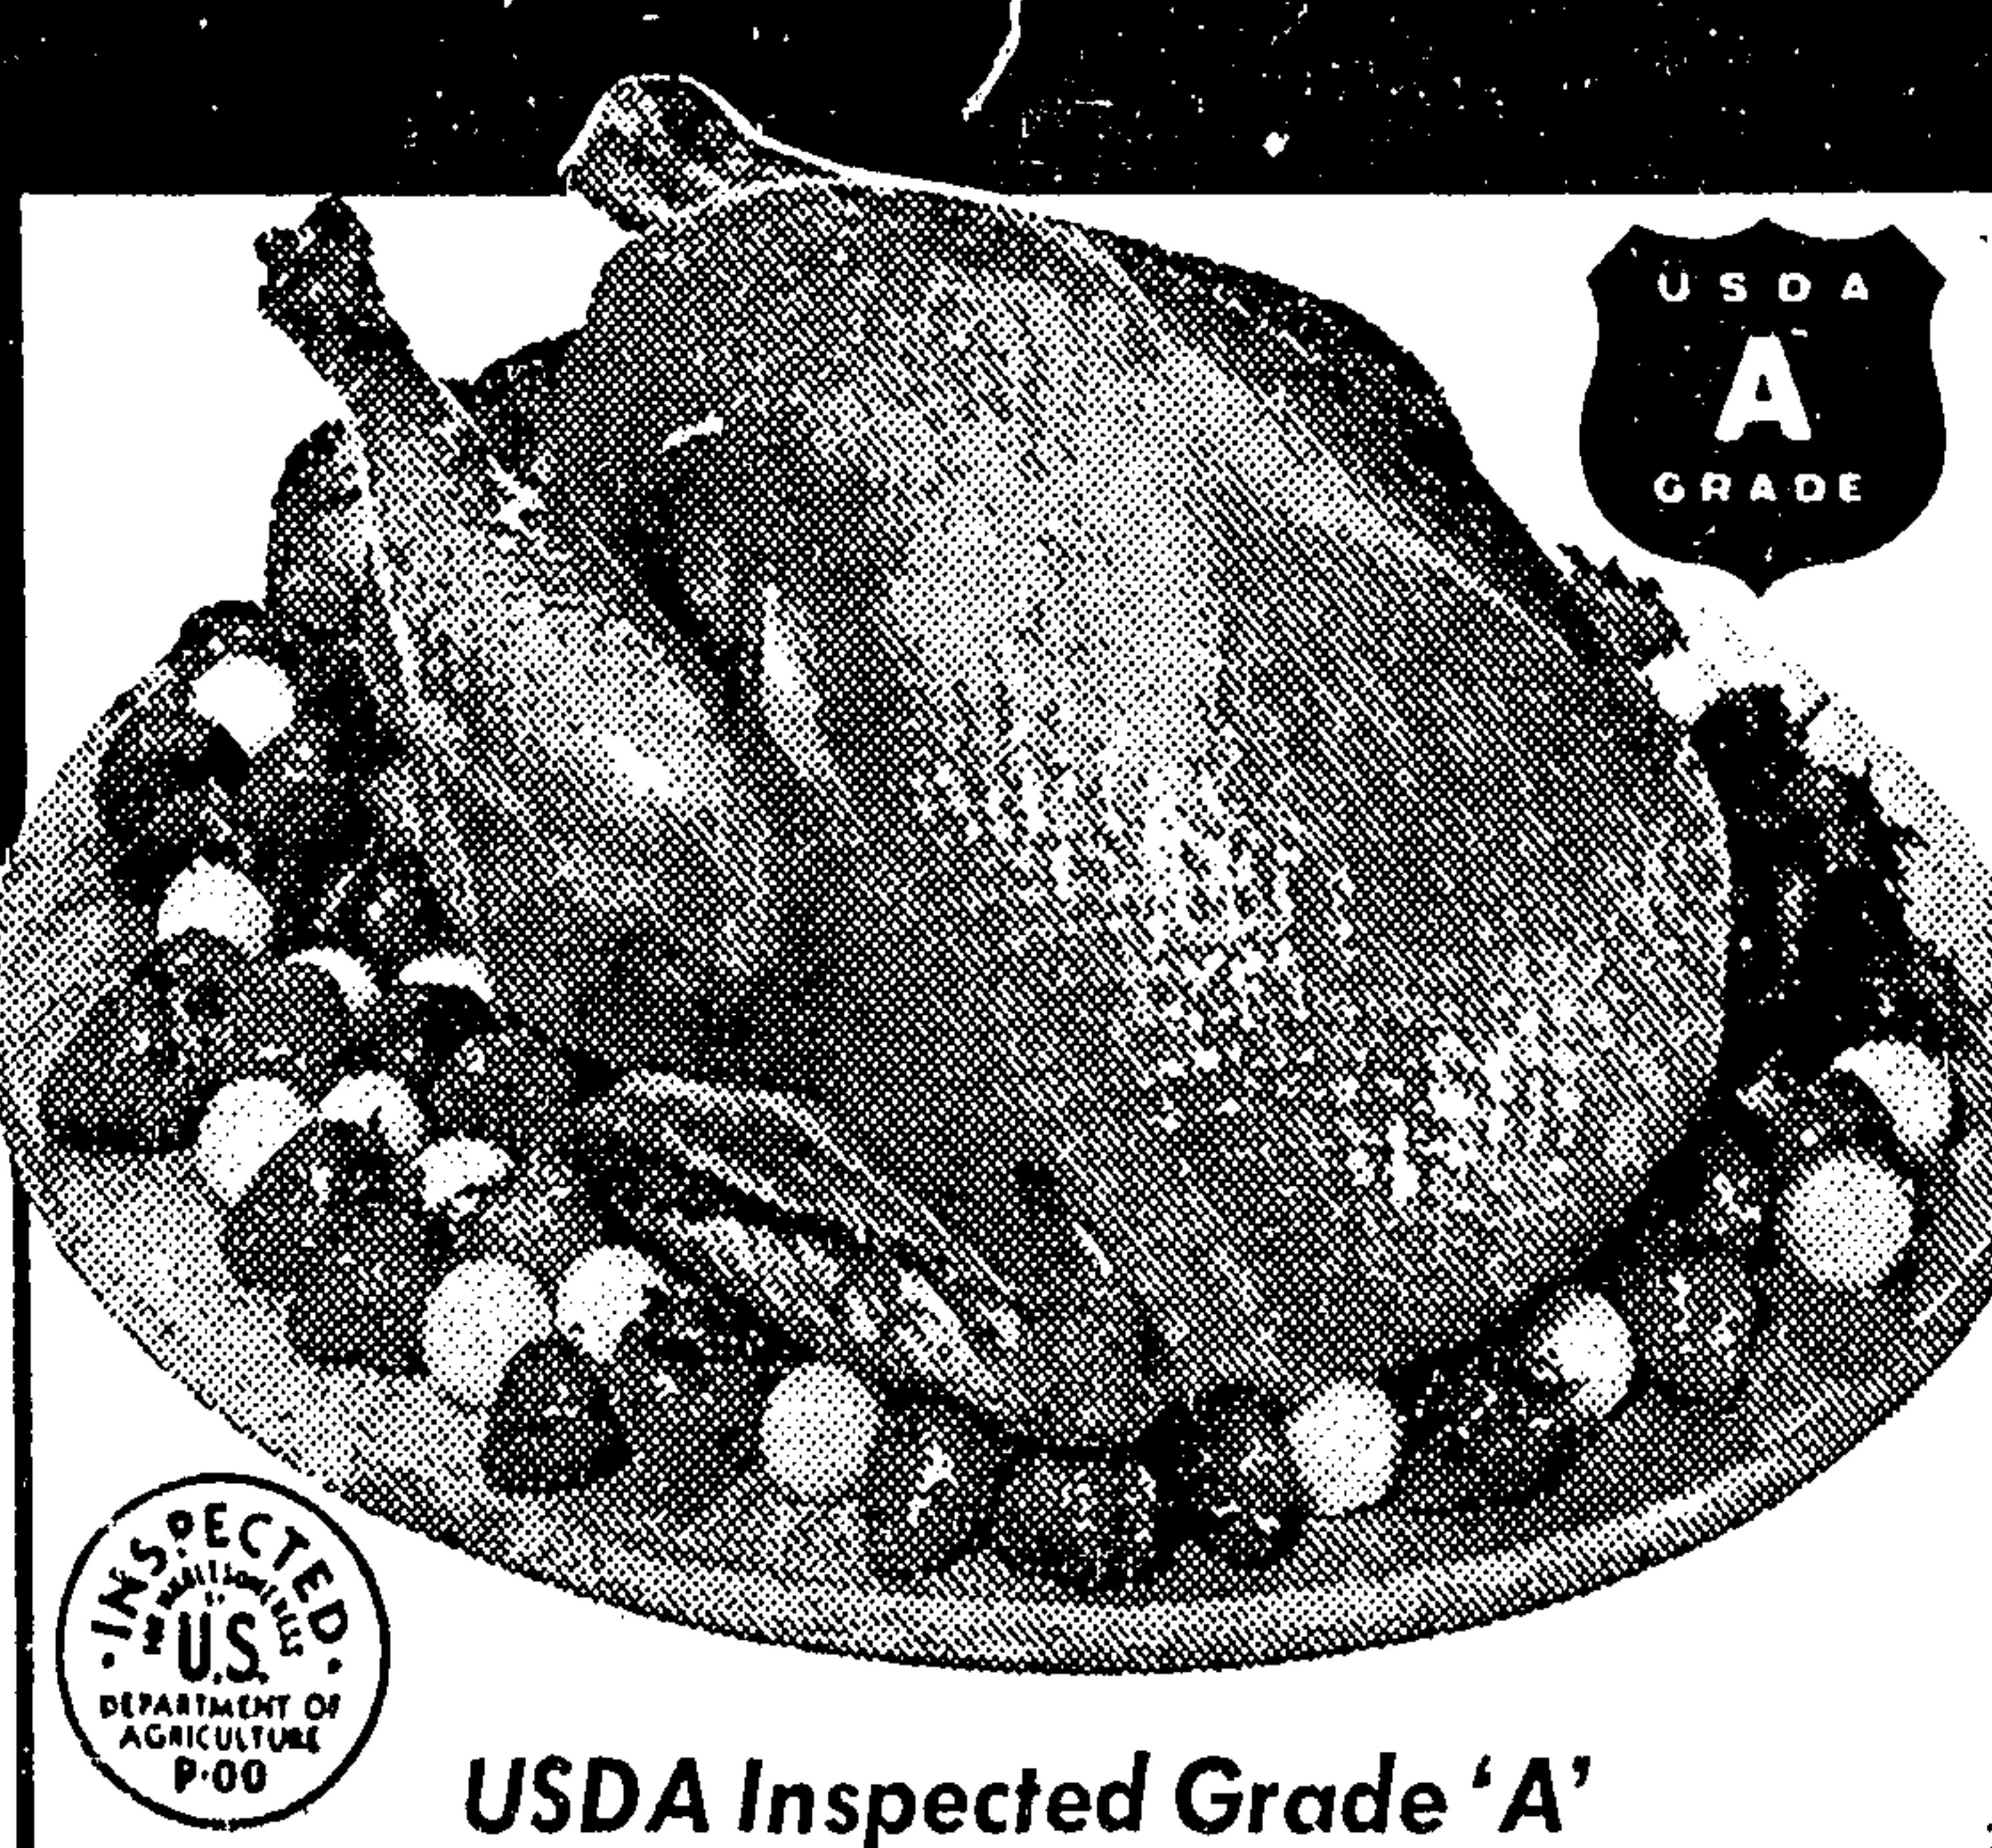

Two hours later, the Kennedy baby died. Powers was with the president. "He went upstairs to the room where he had been sleeping, sat on the bed and wept."

Texas Gov. Edmund Davis: set the GOP Back Many Decades?

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

At the highest of the little hills in the State Cemetery at Austin stands the tallest monument and a story goes with it.

The name of the man who lies under the obelisk is Edmund J. Davis, the only Republican governor Texas ever had.

There are no references at hand to tell how or why a monument of this size was built. There is a clue, however, in a line engraved on the monument.

This phrase reads, "Erected by his brother."

Which creates a little mystique. Did the state refused to erect a headstone? And did the brother build a monument of such size in defiance of the anti-Davis faction?

For Davis was the Reconstruction governor. It was not the fact that he was a Republican that possibly set back the GOP in Texas for so many decades. It was what he did as an individual. Many Republicans fled from him.

Davis was not a carpetbagger but a scalawag. Which may require a definition of terms in this generation.

A scalawag was a southerner who supported the Union in the Civil War. A carpetbagger was a person who came from northern states hoping to make a fortune in the chaos of Reconstruction.

Davis was a district attorney and later district judge in Brownsville and Laredo before the War Between the States.

T. R. Fehrenbach, in his book, "Lone Star," which is the most readable history of Texas, relates that Davis sought to convince a second lieutenant in the cavalry to fight for the union, not the South.

The lieutenant was none other than Robert E. Lee. You know what he became.

Davis felt that secession was suicide for the South. At one point, he headed a force of Union cavalry on the border and was thoroughly whipped by a pickup force headed by Rip Ford, that fabulous Texas character. Ford drove Davis into public life.

And here is a strange thing about the election. It was Republican vs. Republican.

After the war and while federal troops dominated the state, was the conservative Republican's candidate. Hamilton, former congressman who stuck with the union, had been appointed governor by the military and served briefly. Many simply disappeared.

The vote never was canvassed. Gen. J. J. Roberts, head of the military in Texas, announced that Davis won 39,901 to 39,092.

By the next election, the conservative wing of the party had merged with the Democrats, changing the political history of the state and the Democratic party.

The hate against Davis grew out of his determination to turn Texas into a police state.
